

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of linking web pages involving a step of associating one or more supplementary links with a primary web page. The one or more supplementary links are selectively accessible to the user to enable the user to access one or more secondary web pages. The described method allows multiple supplementary links to be associated with every point on a web page, so that each web page can potentially have thousands of supplementary links.